Support your local Tesco!
Imagine if Tesco disappeared overnight and your nearest cash machine became the one under the fluorescent light that charges £1.65 for withdrawals. Is that worth championing local business for? I don't know.

Anecdote Corner
The other day me and my boyfriend took our laptops to a cafe so we could use their WIFI to apply for jobs, but all the outlets were taken so we went to Sainsbury instead to buy some potatoes and salmon for dinner. It was an angry shop because we were carrying laptops in our bags and they were really heavy and we didn't have jobs. We didn't say anything, except 'salmon' when we found the salmon and 'potatoes' when we found the potatoes and then we went back to the cafe and found a free outlet to plug in our laptops. After a while we were concerned about the salmon, there was a lot of heat in the cafe, what with all the bodies and laptops and so I suggested my boyfriend take the salmon out for a walk, to get some air. I looked after his laptop in the cafe while he went out to walk the salmon and 15 minutes later he came back with the salmon and we took our laptops home and watched Pointless and ate the salmon.

College Days
I've never been very cool. I remember when I was in college and I was sitting with a group of girls on the common room carpet, just getting to know each other and stuff, you know how college is...and one of the girls who I really liked asked if I've ever been stoned. No I hadn't, I said, but someone threw an egg at me once. Well they all laughed of course, and then we all went back to hers and got stoned and I never felt so paranoid in my life.

Men are like snowflakes, they're all the same.

Here's A tip
The most effective way to tip a waitress to ensure those bastards she works for don't get any, is to slip the note in her breast pocket while she bends down to collect the plates. Pat it down firmly and then, as you're walking away, turn to her and wink, like this...

THE BEST MEDICAL CONSULTATION OF
YOUR LIFE

Recently I went to the urologist because of pain in my urethra. I was asked if I required a chaperone and I said 'OK, sure' (because I heard that sometimes they use celebrities) and who should come in but Sir Paul McCartney! He sat at my bedside while the urologist examined my urethra and played 'Blackbird' on the acoustic guitar. The urologist said I had a urinary tract infection, and should clear up after a round of antibiotics. And that was the best consultation of my life.
